

Migration & Ministry

The Susanna Wesley Foundation of the University of Roehampton
in conjunction with the Methodist Church.

Wednesday, 7 September 2016
University of Roehampton, London.

This one-day Conference, hosted by the Susanna Wesley Foundation, will explore the rich, complex relationship between migration and ministry across a broad range of academic disciplines, faith traditions and religious organisations. As a community of scholarship, research and innovation, the Foundation seeks to promote interdisciplinary study and dialogue, and to generate insights and resources which will help achieve transformative change in ministry. This conference offers an opportunity for that dialogue and for the generation of new perspectives with potential for real impact.

We invite contributions - from both scholars and practitioners on the following themes:

- Theologies of Migration
- Diaspora Communities
- Histories of Migration
- Asylum and Refuge

We welcome suggestions for contributions in a variety of formats, including academic research papers, practice reports, art installations and panel discussions.

Please send abstracts or summaries (150-200 words) to swf@roehampton.ac.uk by 31 March 2016. In your email, please indicate the theme (above) for which you wish your contribution to be considered.
